Re: Travel Sentry, Inc. v. David Tropp
Case No. 06-cv-6415 ("Travel Sentry")

David Tropp v. Conair Corp. et al.
Case No. 08-cv-4446 ("Conair")

Dear Judge Vitaliano:

We are counsel for David Tropp in the respective two cases cited above. We write in response to the letter to the Court of William L. Prickett, counsel for Travel Sentry and each of the defendants in the Conair case, dated May 22, 2015.

In that letter, counsel for Travel Sentry and the Conair defendants informed the Court of the United States Court of Appeals recent ruling in Akamai Tech., Inc. v. Limelight Networks, Inc., 2009-1372, slip op. (Fed. Cir. May 13, 2015), where the Court ruled on remand from the Supreme Court in a 2:1 decision to uphold the "single entity rule" as concerns direct infringement as enunciated in BMC Resources, Inc. v. Paymentech, L.P., 498 F.3d 1373 (Fed. Cir. 2007) and Muniauction, Inc. v. Thomson Corp., 532 F.3d 1318 (Fed. Cir. 2008).

Counsel concludes his letter by stating that because of this decision of the Federal Circuit "neither Travel Sentry nor any of the Conair defendants can be liable for infringement of Tropp's patents," thereby implying that the pending motions for summary judgment on noninfringement should be granted. See Travel Sentry, ECF No. 216, Conair, ECF No. 343. David Tropp respectfully disagrees. As stated, the ruling was a 2:1 decision. There was an extremely vigorous dissent which argues for a change to the single entity rule to close a blatant loophole in the law.[1] If the dissent's opinion is adopted by the full court in an en banc hearing, it is respectfully submitted that summary judgment on the issue of infringement in these cases could not be granted. Akamai has already publicly announced it intends to seek an en banc hearing.

[1] It should be noted that each of the Judges on the panel ruled as they did in the Federal Circuit's previous en banc ruling on the case.

Therefore, in order to conserve the resources of this Court, and the parties, it is submitted that the Court should continue to defer ruling until the law on the single entity rule is finally ruled on and the appeals process is completed. Otherwise, a situation could arise, as it did last time, where the appeals process could change the law, which could lead to a remand and further briefing in light of the Court of Appeals' or the Supreme Court's final decision. In the interest of finality, this Court should wait until the appeals process is exhausted and the law is made clear on this point.

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ Donald R. Dinan
